ANTHROCON 2008 PITTSBURGH URBAN JUNGLE SURVIVAL GUIDE

FOOD, SHOPPING, AND ENTERTAINMENT

INTRODUCTION

No matter how you got here, no matter where you're from, we have a few things in common—the obvious being, we're all furrries, and we all need to eat!

Last year, we premiered the Anthrocon Dining Guide. We've listened to your suggestions and have implemented as many as possible. So, to survive in this jungle of iron and steel we present to you: The Anthrocon 2008 Pittsburgh Urban Jungle Survival Guide!

Now before we sign off here, there are a few things we need to warn you about:

1. Downtown Pittsburgh keeps strange hours. We highly recommend that you call a restaurant before you venture off.
2. A guide to Station Square is provided at the end of this booklet. Located about a mile south of the DLCC, it is easily accessible via the Pittsburgh subway system, also known as "the T."
3. Don't say we didn't warn you about operating hours, because we did. Call ahead first.

This Jungle Survival Guide also contains a directory of Pittsburgh's infamous—wait, it's not evil—famous strip district.

So put your feet up, thumb through these pages, and find yourself some food.

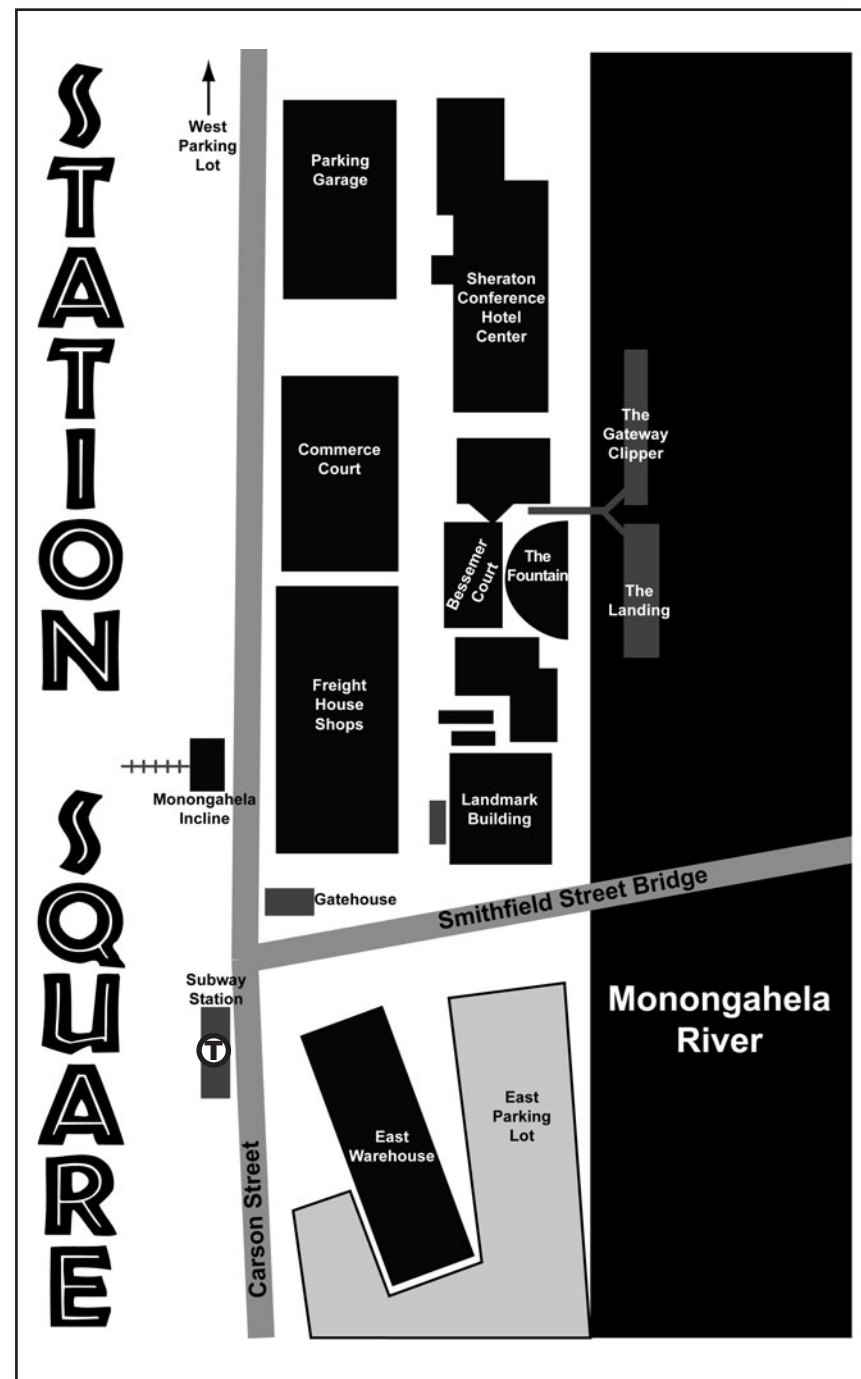

—The Anthrocon Publications Staff

THE STRIP DISTRICT

One of the joys of having Anthrocon in the David L. Lawrence Convention Center is the proximity to Pittsburgh's diverse cultural district, more commonly called "The Strip."

The Strip is filled to the brim with unique shops and restaurants. If you miss those "interesting" places that you used to wander to in Philadelphia, we dare you to go exploring this urban jungle and stop at one of the sidewalk restaurants. Keep in mind, some only take cash, but everything is fresh (and so much better for you than that double cheeseburger you were going to get from a fast-food chain).

Shopping in the strip can lead to some interesting and outright strange finds, such as wasabi malted milk balls—available from the chocolatier located about a mile away from the convention center.

The following restaurants in the Strip District have been recommended by Anthrocon attendees:

Steel City Diner 961 Liberty Avenue (412) 434 - 6440	Fernando's 963 Liberty Avenue (412) 853 - 9171
Golden Palace Buffet 647 Smithfield Street (412) 338 - 1888	Sushi Kim's 1241 Penn Avenue (412) 281 - 9956

There is no authoritative guide available on the Strip as the shops change every few months due to current economic trends. Here are some helpful tips for when you go exploring in the Strip:

- 1: Carry cash. Some of the shops in the strip do not accept Debit/Credit cards, and those that do have minimum purchase amounts (typically around $10.00).
- 2: The streets can be confusing. If you don't know where you are, or you're unsure, ask someone. Trust us, it is better to be a tourist for a few minutes and ask than to get yourself turned around sideways.
- 3: Be careful what you purchase from street vendors. We can say this a thousand times, but we say it here again.
- 4: The compact size of the Golden Triangle (downtown Pittsburgh) provides many opportunities for walking and sightseeing. While most restaurants and services are within walking distance, the weather will probably be hot. Be sure to drink plenty of water. Soda or alcohol will only make you more dehydrated.
- 5: Buses and subways operate daily from 5 am - 1 am. "The T" subway system connects the downtown area with Station Square. Travel between the three downtown stations (Steel Plaza, Wood Street, and Gateway) is free. It costs $0.75 to go to Station Square.

STATION SQUARE

In this aged jungle of steel and rail, Pittsburgh has worked to revitalize several once-used railhouses into premier shopping and dining.

Station Square is just over a mile away from the David L. Lawrence Convention Center. If you want to hoof it you can, but it's easier to take the bus or "the T" subway; think of it as a 21st century safari.

Additional information can be found at www.stationsquare.com (go see TigerWolf in the Internet Room, he needs the company).
